Mr Howland Wood,

Dear Sir -

I am sending the coin by which I wish you by registered mail. I found when I had it taken from the mounting that it was quite mutilated about the edges - If it should be of any value which I cannot is very doubtful

Would you much Rather See me when I could Discuss it - Thanking you in advance

Sincerely Yours

Dear Madam:

Your letter and coin reached here the other day. The piece is a denarius of Vespasian, who was Emperor of Rome during the First Century, A.D. The edge is all right and is as it was struck. The coin, however, is worth at most 50¢ for a dealer to sell. I am returning your piece by parcel post.

Very truly yours,

Curator
